

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An external terminal is formed on an interconnect pattern formed on a substrate by using a soldering material. Subsequently, a chip component having an electrode is 5 mounted on the substrate. An interconnect for electrically connecting the electrode and the interconnect pattern is formed at a temperature lower than a melting point of the soldering material.